

7TH ANNUAL DINNER
Wednesday, October 11, 2017

Featuring
“A History of Severe Storms in the Poconos”
by Meteorologist Ben Gelber

The Pocono mountains and the weather both have a significant impact on our lives. Weather systems from the West, from the Gulf Stream and even the effect of the Great Lakes have converged to produce major weather events here. Pocono native and veteran meteorologist Benjamin D. Gelber will describe major weather events and risk factors, with suggestions of trends and subtle climate-changing influences. Gelber, an on-air meteorologist for NBC4-TV in Columbus, Ohio, is the author of three books and many articles about Pocono weather. He contributes to the National Weather Service and teaches at Ohio State University.
